“EARLY RELATIONAL HEALTH: FROM THEORY TO PRACTICE”

Dorothy T. Richardson, PhD
Course Director

6-Month Remote Certificate Course:

This new offering is a 6-month remote course supporting multiple disciplines of professionals globally in the integration of current theories of development and change processes, supported by small reflective practice groups.

Participants will receive a Certificate in Early Relational Health: Upon completion of 60 hours of training, in 30 hours of didactic and interactive learning sessions and 30 hours of reflective consultation groups supporting participants' integration of theory to practice.

Graduates will be eligible to participate in the UMass Chan Fellowship in Early Relational Health – a two-year hybrid Advanced Certificate Program, diving more deeply into integration of theory to practice. For more information about the 2024-2026 Fellowship in Early Relational Health.
